Telstar Class of 2007 graduates

By ALISON ALOISIO

Sixty-two graduates of Telstar Regional High School received their diplomas Friday evening in a ceremony at the school.

Ted Davis, who returned as principal this year after several years of retirement, opened the commencement exercises.

He was followed by senior Tonya Hebert, who sang the national anthem.

Class advisor Merrie Lee Ojeda gave the welcome, and was followed by third honors speaker Jacquelyn Coffin.

Using the analogy of doors opening and closing, she traced the class members' journey through elementary, middle and high school.

Now, she said, "the doors of high school are closing, and though the door opening may not be the door we always hoped for, in the end it will be the door we will be most proud of."

Coffin was followed by salutatorian Jennifer Learned.

"The choices we have all made brought us here today," she said, choices based on ideas, values and dreams.

The graduates will have to make difficult choices in the future, said Learned, and "the best we can do is work hard toward what we want."

Valedictorian April Bolstridge used a hiking trip her family once took as a metaphor for how her classmates may approach life.

The first day of the trip, she said, "the sun was shining, the birds were singing—and I wanted to go home."

But after reaching a picturesque campsite next to a waterfall, "my mood got better," said Bolstridge. And the next day "was one of the best of my life."

Anna Willard, Telstar 2002, runs to gold in NCAA championship

By ALISON ALOISIO

Taking the next step in a running career that began with picking up bottles and cans along the side of the road in Greenwood, Anna Willard last week picked up a national title in the steeplechase at the NCAA Division I Track and Field Championships in Sacramento.

Willard, a graduate student at the University of Michigan, won the 3,000-meter race in 9:38.08—a personal best, an NCAA collegiate record, and the fastest time by an American this year.

The 2002 Telstar graduate went to the lead early, she said Monday.

"It can get really messy in the middle of the pack," because the runners often jostle each other as they make the water jumps, she said.

As she expected, another top runner, Kassi Andersen of Brigham Young, passed her. Willard was content to draft Andersen through most of the race.

"I just sat on her shoulder," said Willard.

With 500 meters to go, she took the lead for good.

Willard said she had more in the tank if she had needed it, but the race pace was slower than what she had expected.

"For the most part I was just going to run for the win," she said, but she was ready if the competition had pushed the pace more.

Willard was ranked third in the nation in the Cross, Arizzi win new terms on SAD44 board

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A close vote marked the only contested race in Tuesday's elections in Bethel.

The race featured three candidates competing for two open three-year terms on the SAD44 Board of Directors.

The three, Elaine Cross, Lynn Arizzi and Carol Everett, were all incumbents with similar voting patterns while on the board.

Cross won reelection easily,

G&W will begin to charge for dumping of construction debris

'The CD is getting completely out of control.'

RICK YOUNG
G&W Committee

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Contractors hauling "CD" (construction debris) into the Greenstock Transfer Station will soon have to pay for the privilege.

Within a month, the G&W Transfer Station Administrative Board plans to have a punch-card system in place that will require contractors to pay from $15 to $60 per load for dumping CD.

The G&W board is made up of selectmen from the two towns, and the changes they plan at the transfer station are being driven by the steadily increasing cost to town taxpayers of disposing of solid waste, especially bulky and unrecycled waste such as CD.

Currently solid-waste disposal is the third largest item in the towns' budgets, behind only school and road expenses.

This year Woodstock will pay approximately $115,000 (the figure includes Milton Township); and Greenwood nearly $90,000.

The new fee-based plan is in-

Rec trails group talks $$ benefits

By ALISON ALOISIO

Area residents and businesspeople who see recreational trails as the path to economic development have drawn up a map to get them to their destination.

"Trails: What's in it for Business and the Economy?" was the topic of a recent workshop in Bethel, attended by about two dozen people.

Kirk Siegel, coordinator of the Bethel Area Trails Committee, said that trails for walking and other activities have become so desirable in recent years that in some communities, development has followed the course of newly-built trails.

Research has also shown, Siegel said, that trails are the primary amenity affecting home buyers 55 and older, and that there is an $8,000-to-

Letters

I'M TRULY SORRY

To the Editor:

I am writing this in the hopes that you will publish this letter in your newspaper so that I can apologize to all the people whose lives I so selfishly disrupted. Yes, I am responsible for the latter two bomb threats to Telstar High School. I am confessing because I want to right this terrible wrong and apologize to my family, especially my mother, for all the emotional distress that I have put them through because of my stupid actions. I would like to apologize to all my fellow students and their families for all the distress and fright I so stupidly put in their lives. I would as a whole like to apologize to all the people whose lives I disrupted, and to all the people I scared by doing this.

At the time, I did not understand the severity of my actions, and although I do now, because of the peer pressure I was under, I did a very stupid thing and wrote those threats. I really wish that I could tell everyone this affected how sorry I am in every way. If I could go back in time and change this, I would.

Because of this, I have ruined my summer, had many of my privileges revoked, and have disappointed everyone. I wish so badly that I could go back in time and make sure none of this happened. But, unfortunately, I can't. But I am ready to accept my punishment, whatever that may be. And I hope that somehow, some way, this town of Bethel can find it in their hearts to forgive me for my stupid, immature actions. After all, I'm only 14 and a kid, and kids do stupid things. But still this is no excuse.

Also out of this, I hope that the school will take more time into addressing the students on the punishments for things like this, in the hopes that this will not be taken lightly and happen again. Once again, I'm truly sorry for all the disruption I have caused. (In light of the writer's age, his name is being withheld. —MRD)

DON'T DEFILE THIS VIEW

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my opposition to the development of a marina on Round Pond in the village of Locke Mills.

The town has a Comprehensive Plan accepted by a large majority of voters. In the "Natural Resource" section, Page 13, I quote: "Town Goal: To protect the natural resources in Greenwood and those it shares" (with other towns). Continuing, "Scenic location, views and road corridors are an important part of Greenwood's character. Permanent loss of physical and/or visual access to these locations could alter the character of the community."

To see the ultimate result of marina development, you only have to drive across the causeway in Naples, Maine.

The proposed marina is a step in lining the 900 feet of shoreline in question with docks and boats. This is not a business matter, it is a matter of preserving the peaceful character of Greenwood.

The increased boat traffic will cause erosion to the stream banks and damage aquatic plants. Oil from the moored boats will possibly pollute and damage the Alder River. A lack of bathroom facilities, which cannot be legally built on this lot, will make people use the bushes contributing to reduction in the aesthetics of area. Boat parties, possible drinking, damage and theft of valuables on the boats will give our new constable a lot of business.

Finally, look at the photograph on the front page of last week's Bethel Citizen. Do not defile this beautiful view with a marina.

SENIOR BABE RUTH BASEBALL

To the Editor:

Bethel Senior Babe Ruth Baseball, ages 16-18, kicked off its inaugural season by splitting a doubleheader with Portland on Sunday, June 10.

In the opener, Portland edged Bethel in extra innings with a score of 3-2. Kyle Maines had a strong pitching performance, going all eight innings while striking out five batters. Bethel's offense was led by Mike Fleet and Ryan Kimball.

In the second game of these evenly matched teams, Bethel came out on top, 7-6, in extra innings. Mike Fleet went the distance on the mound for Bethel. Max Meader, Bryce Walker, Ryan Kimball and James Kimball all had at least two hits for Bethel. The evening run came in on a base hit by Charlie Rice to drive in Matt Rolfe.

If you're looking for some fun quality baseball come and check out one of our games. The remaining home games are Thursday, June 14 at 5:30 p.m.; Sunday, June 17, doubleheader with 1 p.m. start; Saturday, June 23, doubleheader with 10 a.m. start. All games are at Telstar Regional High School.

A tentative schedule for Senior Babe Ruth games: Thursday, June 14 home game/Windham 5:30 p.m.; Sunday, June 17 home DH w/Westbrook 1 p.m.; Saturday, June 23 home DH w/Saco 10 a.m. and w/Biddeford 12:30 p.m.; Tuesday, June 26 away with Windham 5:30 p.m.; Saturday, June 30 away DHw/Biddeford 10 a.m. start and w/Saco 12:30 p.m. start; Tuesday, July 10 away with Windham 5:30 p.m. Coaches: Rick Whitney (357-4675) and Levi Brown (824-2155).

THANKS TO THE TOWN CORRESPONDENTS

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to the editor in an attempt to thank many of the writers for their faithful contributions to this paper. I will tell you why I relate to them even though I really do not know any of them. My husband reads the paper to me nearly every week, and it means a great deal to both of us.

First, Richard Grover. We delight in reading your articles. My grandma, Constance Wheeler, wife of my favorite grandpa, Wesley Wheeler, was a Grover. She had a brother, Selden Grover, but I do not remember the names of her other siblings.

Lin Chapman, thank you. I believe your mom was Millie McLain who wrote your column before you. For a time she was my mom's roommate at Ledgeview. Although we could not talk with her much, Millie seemed very smiley, and laughed a lot. She had a favorite lion stuffed animal. The caregivers at Ledgeview were very good to Millie. My mom was Elmira Doyen.

Then there is Rocky Graham. No, I did not know her either. However, a very close friend of hers is Lynn Courtney Mason. Lynn and I finally met a few years ago professionally because of our work with Maine's Bureau of Rehabilitation.

It has been fun to read Lorraine Larson's accounts as well. If I am not mistaken, her maiden name was Swan, and she was a good friend back in grade school to my sister, Connie Hindman.

And there are Sylvia Harrington and Clem Worcester. Newry is very special to me, along with Sunday River and Hanover. My Grandpa Wesley and I used to deliver the mail up to Sunday River, through the Artist's Bridge, stopping at Roderick's. The truck always stopped at a slant to get into his mailbox. Our final delivery on the River was at Roland Fleet's.

From there we would drive to Newry Corner, and again start delivering until Hanover, when we delivered the mail to the post office, and on to Rumford Point, and John Martin's store. We had time for nickel hot dogs, and nickel sodas before returning to Bethel.

We moved away from Bethel when I was quite young, but we always came back to see Grandpa and Grandma.

Then I worked out of state a few years, and came back to Maine in the mid '60s to work full-time. Within a month after I returned to Maine, a friend brought a certain someone to my home in South Portland because this friend thought we would have a lot in common. We did. He was a graduate of Gould Academy, and loved his four years as a boarding student there. His class reunions are another reason we still return to Bethel. And by the way, the first night I met him I told him that if I ever got married, I would get married in the little Methodist Church, and in a little over a year from that time, that is exactly what happened. Next month we will be celebrating our fortieth wedding anniversary — and we still love to come over those railroad tracks and into Bethel. We are also fortunate to have a nephew still living there.

And I thank you for continuing the Bethel Citizen, and for all you wonderful people who contribute to it.

Marjorie Doyen Awalt
Augusta

P.S. Marjorie was born blind 72 years ago and her early life revolved about affairs with friends and family. We were married at the Bethel Methodist Church on July 29, 1967 and took our honeymoon trip to Montreal, P.Q. and Expo '67. We were feted by Bethel folks in Barrie, Vt., by chance at a restaurant, who had just read The Citizen the day before with the nuptials in the copy.

THEY CANNOT DO IT ALONE

To the Editor:

What does it mean when we say, "I support the troops"? Is it the politically correct response in the current environment of turmoil and national debate surrounding our actions in Iraq, Afghanistan, and around the world? Does it mean "anything they need, so long as it's not in my back yard"? My back yard, indeed! The terrorists are in our back yard! How dare we sit back and complain about infringements on our many blessings — our space, our peace, our quiet, our rights?

These blessings are not of our making, but they do require our defense and our protection. To claim these privileges, we need to share the risks and sacrifices of those who have secured them for us over the years. Many have died for us so that this country and its freedoms might endure. What can we do, what are we doing to join in the effort with so many who continue to serve on our behalf? Where is our investment in our homeland? We are not safe from threat, nor does it stop at our shores.

The question remains, "What are we doing to support the troops," who are willing to give their all for those of us who enjoy living undisturbed, with consciences clear, in our comfortable environs? Where is our gratitude, our appreciation, our commitment? To quote a relative of mine one bright sunny day as we watched a training flight of fighters streaking overhead (it took a couple of seconds and they were gone): "Thank God, they're ours!"

Our help and support are needed in many ways before these brave troops become combat statistics, as have hundreds of thousands over the years. We are obligated to support them in defending this nation, and need to be willing to share the risks and a few inconveniences. They cannot do it alone.

VERY FINE FINE ARTS

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate and thank the students and staff at Telstar Regional Middle/High School for the delightful fine arts performances of recent weeks.

The high school students held their spring band and chorus concert, followed by the Telstar Middle School Fine Arts Night and then the high school drama department's performance of "A Mountain Home Companion."

What a treat to sit back and be entertained by our students who shared their amazing talents in so many art forms — a variety of film, voice, acting, dance, comedy, and instrumentals in the auditorium, while the cafeteria was transformed into a gallery of artwork created by middle school students.

I left each event not only in awe of the abundant talent, but also of all the effort and happy energy put into each evening by students, staff, and volunteers.

A special thanks to the dedicated staff who took on the extra work at a very busy time of year to provide the opportunity for every student to shine in these performances. Your guidance and support of these young artists is so evident and much appreciated. Telstar students are clearly an eclectic bunch of talented kids who will continue to shine and keep us appreciating the arts for a long time to come. Thank you.

garnering 266 votes, but the battle for the second seat was tight, with Arizzi narrowly topping Everett, 178 to 172.

Two other incumbent directors were reelected Tuesday, both running unopposed — Pat Nasta to a two-year term, and Roberta Taylor to a one-year term.

Incumbent selectmen Don Bennett and Stan Howe; and incumbent assessors Howe and David Luxton were unopposed in their reelection bids, all for three-year terms.

Bethel voters reconvened Wednesday at 7 p.m. for their annual Town Meeting. (Next week's Citizen will provide coverage of that meeting.)

School budget, state bonds approved
SAD44's proposed budget of $9.9 million budget for FY08 passed easily in all district towns, with each of the budget's seven components being approved by overall margins of 2-1 or greater.

In balloting on two state bond issues — one calling for borrowing $113 million for transportation projects; the second for borrowing about $18.3 million for water and sewer projects — voters here generally followed the statewide pattern, approving each by wide margins.

But there were exceptions to the pattern, generally in smaller towns.

The Water Bond was defeated in Greenwood (29-36) and Gilead (12-18).

And the 14 voters who turned out in Upton didn't care for either question, turning down the Transportation Bond (6-8) and the Water Bond (3-11).

As predicted, turnout in Tuesday's off-year election was light, with fewer than 20 percent of eligible voters showing up at the polls.

Sprinkler presentation in Newry

NEWRY—A presentation at the Newry Town Office last week regarding integrated fire sprinkler systems was attended by 15 people. The presenters were Franz Haase, an original designer and present patent holder for an integrated domestic water-sprinkler system, and owners John Brighton and Bradley Brighton of the Kwench Group, an international residential sprinkling company. Eric Ellis from the State Fire Marshal's Office, which regulates the sprinkler installation industry in Maine, also spoke about the life safety issue and benefits for the developers, builders, homeowners, fire department and towns that have sprinkler installations.

Another suspicious fire

BERLIN, N.H.—A suspicious fire hit two apartment buildings early Tuesday, continuing an unsettling string of major fires in the city. Everyone living in seven apartments got out safely, but one firefighter suffered a possible back injury, said fire Lt. Roland Cloutier. One occupant said he smelled kerosene and believes the fire was set. Investigators weren't ready to go that far early Tuesday, but Cloutier said the fire is suspicious. It was the seventh major fire in the city this year. A week ago, two vacant buildings were torched. Cloutier said the two buildings that burned Tuesday are about three feet apart. Flames already were burning through the roof of the first building when firefighters arrived around 3:30 a.m., and quickly jumped to the second. "There was no stopping it from spreading to the second building," Cloutier said. He was not sure how many residents were left homeless. Investigators believe the fire started behind the first building. Neighbors who gathered at Tuesday's fire are getting jittery with so many buildings catching fire, some deliberately. "I could hear people screaming and knocking on doors," said a neighbor who did not want her name used. "It's scary and we're getting fed up."

CLARIFICATION

'Findings' still a draft: Last week's story regarding the proposed marina on Round Pond in Greenwood referred to and published findings of fact that had been "drafted" by the town Planning Board regarding the proposal. At that point in the process the findings were still at the draft stage. The final language of findings of fact on the matter had (and has) yet to be discussed and voted on by the Planning Board.

TO MY DAD

Father's Day is coming. I hope I make it through. This year will be the hardest cuz every year I've spent it with you. In my head I can see you, in my heart I hear you say "I love you." People say the pain will go away, all I would ask for is one more day. My lunch breaks aren't the same, I miss you telling me "you're such a pain." I'll never forget your last day, we were holding hands as you slipped away. So glad we said "I love you," only wish I would of told you "You're the best Dad, you made my life great," but as we know, it is too late. Happy Father's Day Dad. I miss you so much. God help me, this is so tough.

ney is always the hardest," she said. "The going can get tough, but the outcome is worth it."

Later in her family's trek, said Bolstridge, they met another hiker headed in the other direction who said they faced a very difficult trail ahead.

"He didn't think we'd be able to make it," she said. "In life, people may try to get you down. You should approach them all the same — don't listen. Your future does not belong to anyone but you. ..."

"Good luck, and happy climbing."

Following Bolstridge, Whitney James, Tonie Morin and Kayla Fitzmorris offered "Reflections" on the class' experiences in school.

They recalled Halloween parades in elementary school, their fifth-grade trip to Boston, winter carnivals, being together in school on 9/11, sports championships, "and how many principals have we had?"

Most importantly, they said, "are the everlasting friendships we made."

The entire class then sang the choral selection "In My Life," by the Beatles.

Becky Cummings, chair of the SAD44 Board of Directors, offered her congratulations, and Supt. David Murphy certified the graduates.

Principal Ted Davis then presented the diplomas.

The farewell was given by co-presidents Evan Hutchinson and Brittany Cole.

They thanked parents and teachers "for all they've done for us."

"Moms, thanks for the constant support and endless encouragement," said Cole. "And dads, thanks for the spare cash."

"Remember, it's not 'good-bye,'" said Hutchinson. "It's 'see you later.'"

Dean of Students Charles Raymond closed the ceremony, telling the audience, "I'm glad to see all of your faces tonight—literally."

The night before graduation, seniors had turned around all the chairs set out for the audience 180 degrees.

The class obligingly turned them back the next morning.

In keeping with tradition, each graduate handed Davis a memento as he gave out the diplomas.

This year's gift was two pennies, as class members gave the principal their final "two cents worth."

Willard

event coming into the national collegiate competition.

"It's been my goal to win," she said. "I felt I was the strongest and the fastest. My full expectation was I was going to win. I felt really comfortable the entire race."

Late comer to the chase

Willard, formerly a distance runner at Brown University, tried the steeplechase when she was a junior at Brown.

She had been running the shorter distance races, but after trying the 3,000-meter steeple run, "I found my body responded well to the longer workouts," she said.

After graduating from Brown in 2006 with a degree in environmental studies, she went on to graduate school at Michigan.

She chose the school because she quickly developed a good rapport with the coach when he recruited her.

In other earlier competitions last month, Willard won several races, either individually or with her relay team, in the Penn Relays and in the Big 10 regional championships.

Running the roads

Her track career started at Telstar Middle School. Willard trained by running along the side of the road.

The conservation-minded teen often picked up empty soda cans to recycle.

"I'd crush them and carry them with me," she said.

Her ability to conserve her energy on the track led to Class C high school state championships in the 800- and 1,600-meter races.

More goals down the road

This week she expects to turn pro and sign a contract with a sponsor, a sports shoe company.

She'll compete in the steeplechase at the U.S. Nationals June 21-23 in Indianapolis, against the best professionals in the country.

If she places in the top three there and meets other competition standards, it's on to the World Competitions in Japan in August.

Willard also hopes to compete in Europe, where the runners often outdistance American competitors.

But, she said, it's a chance to improve against top-notch runners.

Ultimately, Willard has her sights set on the loftiest goal of all — the 2008 Olympics.

"The steeplechase is my best chance to make the Olympics," she said.

Distance runners typically reach their peak in their late 20s or early 30s.

If Willard continues to have success at high levels, she would likely change to other events down the road.

"The steeplechase is hard on your body," she said. "I'd probably move on to the 5-k or the 1,500."

G&W

tended "to ensure that the cost burden is distributed across the users more appropriately." Greenwood member Loretta Mikols said last week at a public hearing on the changes.

CD 'out of control'

The changes affecting CD mark the first round of a three-phase review and restructuring of the G&W's funding mix. "CD was chosen as the initial focus, said board member Rick Young of Woodstock, because of the high cost of disposing of such materials."

"It was basically based on cost. The CD is getting completely out of control," Young said.

Contributing to the problem, Mikols said, are "contractor infiltrators," who dump CD from outside the G&W jurisdiction.

"Which does happen, and happens more than we would prefer to think," she said.

Contractor David Brown of Greenwood agreed.

About a year ago, he said, "I followed two pickups from Sunday River in Newry to the Greenwood Transfer Station with CD."

"And as a taxpayer, that irked me," Brown said.

For Fred Henderson, chairman of the G&W board, such dumping is simply theft.

"If you see someone hauling in stuff in there that shouldn't be, they are stealing from us," Henderson said.

Even prior to the new fee structure taking effect, the increased scrutiny being paid to who's dumping what at the G&W is apparently having an impact.

"After three contractors were confronted," Young said, "our G&W costs dropped better than 20 percent."

Pay per punch

Under the new system for dealing with CD, contractors planning to use the G&W will have to purchase a $300 punch card.

The card will have 20 punches, and from one to four punches will be made for each load of CD, depending on the size of the vehicle bringing it into the station and the fullness (as determined by the transfer station manager) of the load.

Each contractor must also pay a one-time fee of $25 for a "hanging tag" (similar in purpose to the current dump sticker).

At last week's public hearing, the only objections to the new arrangement were raised by Don Lawrence of Bryant Pond, who owns rental properties and manages others.

He raised several concerns about the fairness of the proposal, and about the difficulty of determining just who should be covered by the contractor rules.

"At one time or another, just about everybody in Woodstock who owns a hammer has called himself a contractor," Lawrence said.

"I'm all for managing the thing," he said, "but not for managing it at the sole cost of the people who are trying to make a living in town."

But Woodstock board member Ron Deegan said things differently.

"I think the key word for me is 'equitable,'" Deegan said. "If I'm just a household owner and all I bring is my household garbage, and you're a contractor, you should have to pay a little more for bringing it in than I do."

The next two phases of the transfer-station review will look at commercial haulers and household waste.

Trails

$20,000 premium for real estate located near a high-quality trail.

The Trails Committee, in conjunction with the Mahoosuc Land Trust, has been working to expand the area's trail system for several years. They are also laying out a master plan for the future.

Goals

Participants at the workshop identified the goals they wish to accomplish with their planning.

Among them: create a map of existing trails for the public; increase the management of trails; recognize landowner concerns; sell more homes and bring more tourists to the area year-round; connect Bethel businesses to trails; improve trail planning; provide early notice of development plans to facilitate trail planning and rerouting; and provide safe routes for youth.

Difficulties in trail planning include ensuring that users respect private property. Planning at the workshop drew on the experience of landowners, trail maintenance volunteers and others.

Several people emphasized the need to be considerate of and work with property owners, who worry about damage to their land and liability if someone is hurt.

Realtor Marcel Polak, who is also a member of the Mahoosuc Land Trust, said landowners are already insured under the state of Maine as long as they don't charge for the use of their land.

John Kimball of Albany, who helps maintain 110 miles of snowmobile trails in the area, said better incentives are needed to encourage landowners to offer the use of their land. "Their land is taxed and they get nothing out of it," he said.

And, Kimball said, better communication among businesspeople and those who build and maintain trails is important for planning. Kimball said realtors may know several months before trailkeepers do if potential development may cut off a section of trail.

"We need the realtors, to know what's coming," he said.

Kimball and others noted there is currently no snowmobile access to Bethel Village from the Davis Park area, where the trails run.

There has been discussion of bringing a connection through the Mechanic Street extension.

Immediate plans

Those attending came up with a list of actions they can take in the immediate future that they believe will produce results.

They include connect the village to Davis Park; standardize signs for trailheads that indicate the use for the trails (already underway); create a map (paper or Internet) of existing trails and businesses within a five-mile radius of Bethel; coordinate planning among recreational clubs, businesses and other interested parties; and communicate with planning boards.

The group also plans to create a trail use survey that businesses will employ to help gauge the effectiveness of the efforts to attract more trail users.

From the Bethel Police Log: Bird stuck in tree

At 1:15 p.m. on June 8 Officer Scott Landis responded to the Evergreen Road for a bird stuck in a tree. The homeowner wanted help retrieving the bird, which was an escaped pet. The incident was referred to the Fire Department. The bird was later recaptured by another party.

Tuesday, June 12

At 9:30 a.m. Chief Al Carr responded to a Main Street location for a report that a subject who was not capable of caring for herself was missing. At 10 a.m. the subject was located and transported to the hospital.

Monday, June 11

At 7:15 p.m. Officer Scott Landis responded to a Main Street location for a harassment complaint. He spoke to the parties involved.

Sunday, June 10

At 3:15 a.m. on Main Street Officer T.J. Reese arrested Matthew A. Gordon, 19, of Old Orchard Beach for OUI. He was also summonsed for operating without a license and illegal possession of liquor by a minor by consumption.

At 8:30 p.m. on the North Road Officer T.J. Reese observed a red and white ATV traveling between two cars. The officer attempted to stop the ATV, but it passed the car in front of it and turned on to the Daisy Bryant Road. The officer followed it until the road turned on to an ATV trail, but the ATV never stopped.

At 11:25 p.m. Officer T.J. Reese responded to the Barker Road for a report of shots fired. On arrival he spoke to a subject who was having a party and lighting fireworks. The officer told him to stop lighting the fireworks, and warned him for disorderly conduct.

Friday, June 9

At 6:50 p.m. Officer T.J. Reese and Lt. S.R. White responded to the area of Newry Corner for a report of shots fired. A subject was found to be shooting in his backyard toward the river.

Friday, June 8

At 9:40 p.m. Officer Jack Taylor responded to Route 5 after a white Mercury Marquis, with a handicap registration, had left without permission after being stopped on the Patte Brook Road in Albany by a county deputy. The vehicle was no longer in the area when the BPD officer arrived.

At 11:25 p.m. Officer T.J. Reese responded to a Mayville business for two unwanted subjects. By the time the officer arrived, they had left in a silver Ford pickup truck with New Hampshire plates. The truck was reportedly driving recklessly on the North Road. The officer located the truck, but it would not stop. He chased it into New Hampshire before canceling the pursuit.

At 12:05 a.m. on the Walkers Mills Road Officer T.J. Reese arrested Sonya M. Theriault, 21, of Greenwood for OUI. She was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

At 1:45 a.m. Officer T.J. Reese, after leaving the jail in Paris, received a report of a possible drunk driver on the Mayville Road. The complainant was told by dispatch that because it was early morning there was not another officer available to respond.

Wednesday, June 6

At 7:30 a.m. Officer Travis Fillmore issued a summons at Telstar High School to Toni-Marie Wood, 37, of Woodstock for passing a stopped school bus.

Bethel

by Virginia Keniston

On Sunday, June 3, a group of classmates from the Class of 1951 at Gould Academy enjoyed a get-together at the Serendipity restaurant on Cross Street in Bethel. Attending were: Mary Alice Bancroft, Davene Mitchell, Nancy Cummings, Christine Bennett, and Alberta Merrill.

Ginny Keniston along with daughters Martha Bangs and Rachel McKnight enjoyed a weekend at Old Orchard.

Guest speaker at the Methodist Church on Sunday was David Lloyd of North Conway, who brought antique chimes and played them, very beautiful.

Luna Akers is at home at Sudbury Village after having throat surgery at Mercy Hospital.

Bridget's Dance Recital was held at the Gould Academy Bingham Auditorium on Sunday.

A baby shower for Kathy DeGruttola, who works at the Chamber of Commerce, was held at Serendipity on Monday with 17 people attending. A good time was had and many nice gifts received.

This week's news will be my last. It is my hope someone will come forward to continue this column.

Mayville News

By Donald G. Bennett

About the Ledgewood Motel — Follow up to last week's question about the half-century-old motel was sent in by Lou and Ray Prada: "The Ledgewood Motel was built in the late '50s or early '60s by Frank and Helen Chomas. They sold it to Ray and Lou Prada in 1970. Howard Palmer bought it in 1979; he sold it in 1987 to ? (his son Perry Palmer might know). Don Cooper then bought it and he and his wife ran it. After Don died his wife continued running it, when she died their daughter sold it — so we were told — probably to the present owners. (Rumor has it Bob Bahre, but is it in a company name or his?)"

"The motel was successful right from the start. Salesmen came on a weekly or monthly basis to serve the many businesses in the area, some of which employed several hundred people. Also, company and union meetings added to the high occupancy. Here's the company names we can dredge out of the old brain: A.C. Lawrence Tannery, A.L. Stewart, B.E. Cole Shoe Mfg., C.B. Cummings, Cornwall Industries, Gladding Paris, Lincoln Foods-Buckfield, Maine Machine, Mobile Home Manufacturers, Oxford Plains Speedway and Drag way (Big Daddy Gartlitts dragster, Bobby Allison and other well-known NASCAR drivers stayed at the Ledgewood Motel), Penley's, West Paris, Robinson Mfg., Wilner's; plus many more too numerous to mention.

"Besides a large salesman business, the motel was busy with Mt. Abram skiers in the winter, people opening their summer camps in the spring, parents visiting their children at numerous summer camps in the surrounding towns in the summer, foliage folks in the fall, Maine tourists year round, rock hounds, family visitors, honeymooners, etc. There, we've told you more than you care to know about the Ledgewood Motel."

And as another follow up to last week's Mayville column — who gave (bequeathed) the old section of Riverside Cemetery known as the "pine grove" to the cemetery association? Bethel's celebrity of the 20th Century's first quarter, Prof. William Rogers Chapman, is the answer. The same man that other sources have identified as also having moved the old "fairgrounds" now Harrington's barn onto its present site.

Chapman's grave and the story behind his career is one of the key points in what the current Riverside Cemetery Association hopes to build into a learning Bethel history program told by cemetery occupants. It is this sort of initiative the association hopes to use in drawing attention to the cemetery from those who can afford to financially support the cost of maintenance and perpetual care of all the burial sites at Riverside. The main focus of course is telling historic Bethel's story to interested visitors. Chapman himself had a strong interest in the cemetery from his boyhood years, his mother had shown her everlasting faith

If you want to read what Bethel citizens had to say about William Rogers Chapman in 1931, check www.thebethelcitizen.com and see "1931-A Citizen Special Edition-Bethel As Seen by Bethel."

In farming news, the corn is up. The field below the River View Resort that Peter Haines planted a little more than a week ago is showing green shoots.

Seen on the new trail behind BIG Adventure, two men walking a happy black dog. This is the first time that I have seen walkers on this new pathway extension. With luck this is the trail that will eventually make its way to Angevine Park.

Next week I am on assignment to the wilds of Flanders, N.J. There is a lovable, "politically uncorrected" chocolate lab named Freckles waiting for me to come to take her on extra daily walks and a lazy but sometimes playful tiger cat named Pickles who just wants the company.

Please send me your news and stories about Mayville or your requests for news on what is happening in the general area. E-mail to Donald@thebethelcitizen.com, info and telephone to 824-2094.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte

Although it rained for a week, Sunday brought us the perfect day. It was cool, sunny and beautiful. The whole country seems to have been plagued with bad weather. The black flies and mosquitoes have no preference. Bad weather or good the little monsters are out there literally looking for blood.

The lupines are about to put on a spectacular show by the end of the week.

The Upton Town Office will be closed on the 14th and 19th of this month.

The Ladies Aid had a very happy first meeting of the year. Election of officers was held: Lucille Largesse will replace her mom as president with Sue Angevine as vice president, Simone Lavallee will be treasurer and Ellie LeComte will be secretary. The meeting began with the storing of Christmas decorations. The Ladies Aid building now closes after the Christmas Party till members return in the spring to finish chores. Members present were Simone Lavallee, who has served as president for many years and receives high praise for her faithfulness and work for the organization. Lucille Largesse, Debbie Judkins, Sue Angevine, Virginia Williamson, Terry Kenney and Ellie LeComte.

Ginny Williamson has been reviewing the way old ledgers of the Ladies Aid, which document activities since before the turn of the century. Lucille Largesse and Simone Lavallee displayed many new and original crafts which they worked on over the winter. The next meeting will be June 14 at 1 p.m. All the ladies of Upton are invited to join in.

Becky Kendall made her semi-annual visit to Upton. She explored Jennifer Casey's gardens and I'm sure was satisfied that Mabel Durkee, long-time owner of the property, would be very proud of the hard work done by Jennifer and Paul. Becky then took a ride uplake with Richard and Ellie.

She remarked that the lush greenness was quite a contrast, comparing it to the desert out West where she had visited.

There were not many boats on the lake Sunday. The boat landing noticeably had just a few cars and trailers. The weather, the gas prices and graduations week may have kept people away.

The birds are plentiful. The robins are very busy providing for their babies in the nests.

We have been searching for a phoebe's nest. The Strattons always had a nest over the light in their camp, but she didn't return this year. I hope she didn't meet a bad end. Shore birds are plentiful but I'm sure a lot of nesting is keeping them out of the public eye.

The "Bird of the Week" is the beautiful goldfinch which shows up like a light bulb in the leaves.

Lucille Largesse is back working at the Bull Moose. People from as far away as Milan are dining there. They are welcomed by a chubby little English bull dog. He's the new "Door Man" and is so friendly that he jumps right into your car to greet you.

We have a variety of butterflies. I don't know their names. There are large yellow and little blue ones that show up each year at lupine time. Except for the black flies and mosquitoes it's a great place to be.

Today, June 14, is Flag Day. Show your pride and display a flag.

Gilead

by Lin Chapman

We recently got a gazebo for the front lawn. It is one of those that is made of fabric, has mesh curtains and metal corners that have a handy shelf for a plant or citronella candle. There were many pieces and assistance was needed to put it together. Tim came down to lend a helping hand and brought Sidney with him. Sid and I read the instructions while Tim and Grampa went to work.

We have enjoyed sitting out in the swing and watching all the birds. There were a pair of cedar waxwings that stopped by and a hummingbird came inside to check out the plants.

My brother, Steve McLain, stopped by last weekend and we were in our favorite spot in the swing, so he pulled up a chair and joined us. He had his little black dog, Laney, with him and she was having a great time watching the chipmunks.

Tim drove us to Hugh's doctor's appointment in Portland last week for follow up on his back surgery. He is doing quite well, and is able to drive again.

While we were in Portland, we went to Falmouth to check in with Howard and Stevie Reiche. It was great to see them and catch up.

Special Town Meeting
There was a Special Town Meeting held on June 12 at the Town Hall. There were 32 registered voters (out of 147) that were present. Paul Handlen was elected moderator. The purpose of the meeting was to see if the town wanted to purchase a pickup truck with a plow and sander. At the annual Town Meeting in March, the town voted to authorize the selectmen to look into the purchase with the understanding that, when they were ready with a price, they would come back to the voters for approval, and this might happen at a special Town Meeting. Fred Corriveau, highway commissioner, assisted with the research and found a vehicle that fits the needs of the town. After a discussion of about one-half hour, a vote was taken. The article passed and the results were 21 Yes votes, 8 No votes and 3 abstaining.

Gilead Historical Society
There is only a little over a week until the Friends and Family Day celebration on June 23 that will be centered at the Town Hall from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Hopefully, there will be something for everyone and the GHS would love to see a big turnout.

The day will start off with a children's parade at 10 a.m. on Depot Street. This year's theme will be Nursery Rhymes, so get together a costume and come and join the fun. Last year the children had a great time and there are first-, second- and third-place ribbons. Bobo, the Clown, will be back again this year and will be in the parade and will entertain afterward.

The big tent will be set up again to have a place to sit and listen to music ("Richard Felt Band" from Bryant Pond and "Dear Claudia" from the Portland area), eat lunch or just visit. The Gilead Fire Department will be at the station selling their delicious burgers, hot dogs and fries. The GHS will also be set up at the station selling homemade pies and ice cream.

The ever-popular Skillet Toss and Gold Coin Search will also be held around midday. Some of the other things that are happening are a 50/50 Raffle, Yard Sale, Historical Artifact Display, and a historical talk on the Grange and Grange Halls through the years, by Dr. Stanley Howe from the Bethel Historical Society.

There is still a need for items for the Yard Sale. Please no big items such as refrigerators or stoves. If anyone would like to make a fruit pie to donate, please give us a call.

Reminder: There will be a final planning meeting on Saturday, June 16 at the Town Hall at 1 p.m.

West Bethel

by Lorrie Hoeh

The Lady's Slippers are fast disappearing, some just wilting, and others eaten by some critter — moose? deer? rabbits? Those left are still quite beautiful because of all the cool, wet weather we've had. The Canada mayflowers are carpeting the woods everywhere with their foamy white blossoms, and the clintonia's greenish-yellow blooms are dropping, soon to be replaced by their deep blue berries (do not eat!).

Our phoebes have hatched, but one has to be very vigilant to see the parent birds landing on the nest, as they are very secretive. When the babies are a bit larger, they will be craning their necks over the rim.

Another nest presents something of a mystery. A couple of weeks ago we spotted a good-sized egg, not a robin's egg, in the abandoned robin's nest outside the second-floor bathroom window. Subsequently the egg disappeared, but we have seen a pair of doves on and off the nest, sometimes together, "billing and cooing," literally. However, we have seen nary an egg. Go figure.

The West Bethel Union Church had one of its public suppers on Saturday night, but the low attendance was disappointing. Could be the reason was a combination of graduation weekend activities and miserable weather. There was plenty of food for those who attended, and all leftover pies were sold before everyone went home.

Grange members have been housecleaning at the Grange Hall. Last weekend a delegation of five workers were there: John and Pauline Applin, Elsie Aylward, Ina Grover, and Jane Hosterman. Curtains were laundered, windows washed, and floors swept and mopped. Now the place is all spiffed up for future guests, which will include Bethel Senior Citizens for dinner this week and the Oxford County Grange the following week. Starting the beginning of July, the annual Flea Market will be open every Friday and Saturday until fall.

Last week Barbara Mahler and Jane Hosterman took a quantity of used clothing items to the Lewiston Salvation Army. This was surplus from the District Exchange, which is routinely dispatched in this way, when the supply is too big for local demand.

On Sunday afternoon we had a cookout here at the Hoehstead. Our oldest daughter, Cyndy Stancioff, with husband Paul and Elisabeth and Louisa, came over from Chesterville for a little bon voyage sendoff. They will be leaving on the 16th for several weeks abroad to visit family and friends. They will be traveling in Italy, Slovenia, and France. Also there to bid them "au revoir" were our daughter Martha and Kirk Siegel, with Molly and Andrew.

During the afternoon we had a dooryard visit from Betty and Helen Cooper, riding their new/old tandem bicycle. It looked like the perfect conveyance for the Flat Road.

I am in search today of a pair of red suspenders for a good friend who recently underwent a colostomy. We're told that belts are uncomfortable in this situation. Labonville, here I come!

Let me hear from you: 836-3011; dhoeh@megalink.net.

Greenwood City

by Wayne Hakala

Friday afternoon I had a call from a very nice young lady asking if she could come up for a moment. You know I'm never going to say no to nice young ladies. Wasn't but a few minutes and she arrived with a present that was guaranteed to make me feel 100 percent better. As I handled the package I knew immediately I was going to be well enough to take on the world.

As Anita was at Bingo, I placed this precious package in the deep freezer for safekeeping and pondered if I should share this treasure with her.

Before I could deliberate with myself too much, Anita was home and I had to fill her in to the treasured package. I unwrapped this treasure and we proceeded to examine the contents. For all of the privileged people that have visited the Inch-By-Inch Farm on Open Farm Days and sampled Lisa's homemade ice cream, you know the treasure I was about to devour. I just had to take my spoon and do a tiny taste test as I would not want Anita to eat first and tell me that I would not like it. Also, that I had better let her take care of it for me.

That first little taste from that great big gallon sent me on a trip to heaven and a guaranteed healing process equal to no other. I have savored each little taste with a revered feeling that comes with aged experience and travels to some of the great ice cream capitals of the world.

But this present comes from the nicest people and they care about their town and neighbors. Lisa, Rodney and Thomas take great pride in their farm and give each cow an additional amount of love and care each and every day. Their care and love show in each and every product that they produce each day. In addition, I'm told that Mrs. Brooks is enjoying some of the same all-natural gift of love too. Moreover, to the nicest dairymaid in Greenwood, "Thank you." Today, young James and I had a nice chat. James has been to New York with his family and had all kinds of information on where they had visited. Plus James tells me that his sister has her license now and is driving him to school. James thinks this is special as he does not have to get up quite as early and catch the bus.

We have to provide a united effort and get our friend and neighbor Cubby Swan on the mend. Cubby needs some support in the form of prayers and get-well wishes. Cubby has helped so many in the community and now he needs us to rally around for some support. So Cubby, here is to you and from all your friends at the sunny side, "get well."

Friday night was the Telstar High School 2007 graduation. Those from the City in the graduating class were Jason Thayer and Albert (Guy) Otis Curtis III. These two have become very active and respected members of the Greenwood Fire Department. Each town needs more young men such as them. Congratulations to both and we are very proud to have them living here as outstanding citizens.

As a reminder, there will be a public supper put on by the Jefferson Lodge and Tri-Town Auxiliary. It will be June 23 at the Masonic Lodge on Main Street in beautiful downtown Bryant Pond. Guaranteed to be some wicked good eating and if you don't get your fill, I guess I'll have to stir the pot and hand out a line of bull or two. So eat hearty.

Got to close for now, but always keep the sun on your face and keep smiling. People will wonder what you are up to. Got to keep them guessing!

The weather has finally turned nice. The corn is up in the garden, but nothing else has come up yet.

God Bless the Troops.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

Tuesday, June 5, started about like any late spring Tuesday in Hanover.

But that didn't last long. First, a State Trooper stopped at the Town Office and said he was there for a building moving detail but he couldn't find the building. He had looked everywhere except the Howard Pond Road. Then someone said, "The truck is there." Moments later the Gardner Roberts Memorial Library moved out of its 100-year-plus parking place and rolled down the Howard Pond Road. Folks came out to take pictures and to follow along as the building moved by. It made the turn onto Route 2 and hurried up to the Town Office on Ferry Road. In less than 20 minutes it lay astraddle the cement pad at its new home.

Then the crowd went away and the moving crew set to work turning the building 90 degrees to fit the pad. It is expected that the roof will go on this week and cement blocks will replace the wood blocks that are temporarily supporting the building.

Next Tuesday, June 19, there will be a Special Town Meeting at the Town House at 12 Howard Pond Road. To be voted on will be the school budget along with several ordinance changes and adoptions. The meeting starts at 6 p.m. preceded by a Public Hearing at 5:30 p.m. to discuss the ordinance changes. A Select Board meeting will follow the Special Town Meeting.

Congratulations go the Hanover area graduating seniors from the local high schools. They include from Mountain Valley High School Chris Barlow, Jared Davis, Corey DeVoe, Leeanne Gross and Justin Theriault from Hanover, Michael Thurston, Rumford Corner, and Thaddeus Bennett from Rumford Point.

Graduates from Hanover at Gould Academy are Nicholas Bean and Jameson Moulton. Those graduating from Telstar Regional High School include Whitney James, Jennifer Pilgrim and Megan Smith from Hanover.

We goofed. A few weeks ago we reported upon those who helped out at the Hanover Clean-up day. One of the hardest workers got left out. Bob Fortin is one of the greatest workers for and best supporters of the Town of Hanover. He was, in fact, the very first Volunteer of Year for the Town of Hanover.

Jim Ray has been at his Triple J cottage at Howard Pond for several weeks and his time is about up, as he heads for Austin tomorrow. He entertained guests, some cousins from Texas, taking them to all the area's favorite attractions like L.L. Bean, Bailey Island, Portland Head and they looked for moose at the Height of Land and Grafton Notch.

Ireland Trip Day 3: Killarney to Galway After our boat ride in Killarney National Park, we boarded the bus for the drive to Galway. Driver Matt resumed his descriptions of Irish landmarks and anecdotes. "Out the left (west) side of the bus you see the highest mountains in Ireland, the Macgillycuddy Reeks: Reeks being the Irish word for hills. The highest is Carrauntoohil, 3,414 feet 2 and 1/4 inches tall. The Irish word 'kill' means 'the church of,' so 'Killarney' is the church of Airne. 'Bally' means 'town of.' — 'Inis' means island. An Irish mile is a mile and a bit, but the bit can be just as long as the mile The arbutus wood in Killarney has a good grain for making inlaid flowers and the like."

As we approached the city of Limerick, I asked Matt if he had read Frank McCourt's books about growing up there in the 1930's depression era. I don't have his exact answer, but I was left with the impression that Matt thinks McCourt exaggerated the poverty of the time and area just to make a good story.

All the while, we passed through beautiful green pastoral farm scenes, mostly pastures of cattle or sheep surrounded by stone walls, occasionally sprinkled by small villages with their well-manicured cottages, and bars and taverns in every town. The larger towns and cities all show signs of prosperity — construction and new houses sprouting up all around the outskirts. There were few signs of American-style, uncontrolled development of strip malls and fast-food joints, though, much to our appreciation!

Before we realized it, we were in Galway, and Matt pulled the bus up in front of the Jury's Inn, just across the street from the waterfront of Galway Bay. After checking in, we found a pedestrian street just left of the hotel entrance; this was a fascinating narrow street lined with wall-to-wall shops, taverns, restaurants and churches extending several blocks and intersecting with more outdoor alcoves and malls of every type. Mona was looking for a Claddagh pin and other jewelry, which abounded on this street.

At one intersection, we were entertained by a stringed orchestra of talented young musicians from a music school, all decked out in top hats and tails. They were recruiting attendance for a concert they were presenting that evening in a local church.

About 7 p.m. that evening, Matt picked us up for the trip to Dunguine Castle on Galway Bay for dinner. We arrived at the castle just as the day began to darken, for another fun and enlightening experience. Before we debarked, Matt warned us about the mead, a strong alcoholic beverage of fermented malt, honey and water. As we entered, we were greeted by a couple dressed in medieval attire, who escorted us through a stone door to an anteroom for a draught of mead while a lovely maiden plucked upon a harp in the corner.

The mead, my first, was a tad sweet, strong tasting and not really one of my favorite beverages. I noticed that Ray had at least two of them as we mingled while a few more tourists entered.

Shortly, one of the maidens led us up another of those narrow, spiraling stone stairways to a dining room on the level above. This was a small, dark room, lighted by torches mounted along the walls. There were two large tables with bench seating, as well as a head table across one end, where a young king and queen (fellow tourists) held court. Small alcoves huddled in the corners behind the head table where servants could poise unobtrusively, ready to react to royalty's slightest whim. The other end of the room, a dozen or so feet from the head table, contained a small, elevated stage where the three costumed actors entertained between meal courses. There were ancient Irish ballads and a humorous period play, all sung by the same three actors/servers. Tiny doorways led off the ends of the stage, through which the actors/servers and trays of food passed. Of course, the meal was accompanied by that "wonderful" mead. The evening was over too soon, and Matt had us back at the Jury's Inn by about midnight.

Galway-Connemara, Day 4
Next morning, we got a late start after a leisurely breakfast at Jury's Inn. We headed for Connemara, a wide peninsula west of Galway. We were headed for the Connemara Marble Factory, a shop where they cut green marble (Connemara Marble) into all sorts of shapes and sizes for everything from intricate jewelry to large stone pieces for building purposes. Most of the ladies purchased some kinds of Connemara jewelry.

Across the very busy road-way, there was a type of gift shop with a large room with vaulted ceiling and a big stone fireplace in which burned some pungent smelling "stuff" with a not unpleasant odor somewhat similar to burning coal. "This," Matt said, "is a peat fire. We will be seeing more of this stuff as we travel on westward."

From the marble factory, we continued westward, and the countryside began appearing of poorer quality farmland; limestone ledge protruded from the fields in many places, reminding me somewhat of the high Sierra Mountain country of California, where the protruding ledges are granite.

Pretty soon, we arrived at yet another castle, this one named Aughnanure Castle. Nancy had added this stop as a favor to some friends whose family (O'Flaherty) is related to the present owners. This castle is remarkable primarily because it resides on the banks of what used to be a large river that helped protect its walls and where visitors used to arrive by boat. Over the centuries, the stream grew smaller, and parts of the original castle have sunk into the stream and disappeared. After exploring this pastoral countryside, we traveled further toward the Connemara coast.

More ledges appeared in the pastures, and in places, the sod was carved into wedges of peat about a foot long; the peat blocks were stacked into small pyramids and left in the sun to dry. John, I think, asked how long it takes for peat to form. Matt responded that the peat "grows" at the rate of about one inch per 100 years, so a peat field or bog being harvested is more than 1,100 years old! It grows only by the dying grass decaying and becoming compacted under the weight of the next year's growth.

Peggy Turner asked Matt, "This must be like the moors in England?"

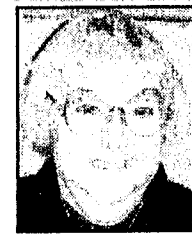

"Moor is a British word!" was the response.

Matt then launched into a description of how important land is to Irishmen. He recommended a play written by John Payne called "The Field" as a good book to give one the feel of how much they love their land. He then pointed out the Aran Islands just off Galway Bay. "They used to be owned and occupied by farmers and fishermen, but now they are kept up through tourism."

As we approached Galway on our return, Matt stated, "We have selected a restaurant that is walking distance from your hotel for dinner tonight. It's only about a block from the hotel, and it's called the Malt House. Excellent." We did. And it was!

The hayfields and lawns are growing inches every day. Haying will start soon.

Lawns need to be mowed at least weekly. Thanks to a good neighbor my lawn looks nice all the time. I do have a small, electric weed whacker so can do a little trimming myself.

On Sunday, June 17, the Rev. Wells May will be speaker at the West Paris Universalist Church. There will be a flower communion. It will be the last service of the season. Church services will be held at the West Sumner Universalist Church in July and August. Services at West Paris will start after Labor Day in September.

The Perham family's trip to Ireland has been very interesting and educational to us readers. Traveling broadens a person making them interested in any article of the places they visited.

Great-grandma Dede Chase helped Keegan Chase celebrate his birthday last week and joined him and his family for supper.

Myrtle Cadanelli attended the seven-mile garage sale Saturday in Norway and found a box of ruby glass dishes for my collection. My china closet is now overflowing with the dark red china. I still need to display a few family pieces. I really do need another tall, thin glass china cabinet. Why does one spend a lifetime collecting certain things?

They have a new shipment of t-shirts along with other things to sell this summer. Two books of Ruby Emery are still available.

The society has some very nice exhibits and they think you will really be impressed with all they have added. The art gallery upstairs in the museum contains both oils and prints. One finds everything from religious themes to abstract works. There is a print by Sawyer and a Hudson River canvas. You are sure to find something you like.

Annella Burnham planted the urn outside the museum and Larry contributed a large plant as well. Much thanks.

Mary and Larry Billings watched the Historical Society museum for its opening. Donations that came in over the winter comprised a special exhibit. One man that came in said, "This is the best place I stopped all day."

Mary put out the T-shirts for sale. Earlier in the day, Larry learned Maine Line Products had sold five books for the society. Thanks.

cessful future — in whatever measures best identify with you — are with you as you begin your journey into young adulthood. We are very proud of you.

And, what a class! The 2007 graduating class from Telstar earned over half a million in scholarships. A lot of them are going on to college; quite a few going on to enter (or remain in) the workplace and a few are going into military services. Quite a group of young adults for those of us who are a part of SAD44 to be proud of.

Best wishes for a happy and safe week. God Bless and Keep!

Waterford

by Rockie Graham

The weather has been summer-like, even when it has rained.

Last Wednesday when we were working in the rain, it was almost too hot to wear a raincoat. The heat and humidity on some of these days is almost too much, but when the sun shines it is a great day to do all kinds of projects.

Dave and I went to the Tananmin Mine with the Waterford Elementary third graders. They really enjoy digging around and looking for gems. They loved being able to wash the rocks and see if they shined. We went because our grandson, David 3 as I call him because he is David Hart the III, asked us to chaperone. David made containers for the kids to collect their rocks. We had a great time.

I saw Kelly today and she seems to be recuperating well from her recent surgery. Hope she'll be better than new and back to work pretty soon.

Today, Thursday the 14th, Waterford Historical Society will meet to honor Flag Day. They will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Waterford Common with a dedication of the flagpole in memory of Malcolm "Mac"

Bean. The memorial benches that were put in in memory of Larry and Alice Rounds have been refurbished by Prentiss Kimball. They will be placed near the Mt. Tier'em Masons Lodge.

The summer yard sales at the Wilkins House have begun. They have everything under the sun. Stop in and browse on Saturday.

Saturday is also the date for the Albany Improvement workday at the Albany Town House. They are starting at 8 a.m. They need volunteers to paint, scrape, putty and do outside landscaping in preparation for construction. They are planning on putting in parking and a handicapped ramp. Bring ladders and appropriate tools.

Also Saturday, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the West Parish Congregational Church on Church Street in Bethel, there will be a talk on "Terrorism and Counter Terrorism: Understanding the New Security Environment."

Dave and I are getting a lot of comments about our newly painted house. Actually, hopefully by the time you read this it will be all done. We decided to go with a bright color instead of the usual boring white. Bright it is. We are surrounding it with colorful flowers, too. We like it.

From Bethel Library

Welcome to the Bethel Library's Summer Reading Program. We encourage all local children to participate each summer to help maintain their reading skills throughout the year.

Kids have the option of choosing to read either 14 books or a total of 14 hours. Kids and parents may decide which option is best for them. Older kids may read to the younger ones.

The intent of our program is to read for fun and to try to complete your goal.

To encourage kids to visit the Bethel Library we request that the books they read are selected from our library.

All children who participate in the program will be able to go on our field trip to the BIG Adventure Center for a day of fun. This trip is scheduled toward the end of August.

Pick up your participation form at the Bethel Library any day after June 15 and start reading.

From West Paris Public Library

Old Home Days weekend proved to be a great success and a lot of fun for the "Little Castle," the West Paris Library. Due to the creative abilities of the librarian, Patty Makley, and Ann Toepker, the library float with the theme 'Gone Reading' gained a trophy in the most creative category. A boat decorated with flying balloons sported three librarians fishing for books. Also, as part of the library entry, Brandon Dunn and Tabitha Haney carried the library banner, 'Little Castle, Big Heart' accompanied by Benton Shattenberg on his stilts, who garnered the trophy for the tallest person in the parade.

Another popular event during the weekend was the four authors who chatted with visitors and signed copies of their works. The four, Eva Ward, A. Sayward Lamb, Dr. Harry L. Harper, and Judy Green were all well received and visitors enjoyed their stories of writing and publishing their works. Light refreshments were served by Friends of the Library.

The Black Fly raffle was held again this year in conjunction with Old Home Days and thru this endeavor, funds were raised for the library building fund.

From SWOAM

The Western Maine Chapter of the Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine will host the rescheduled dedication and tour of the Davis Family forest in Poland at 9 a.m. on June 16.

The dedication that was rained out in May will be followed by a workshop on vernal pools. Judy Walker, assistant wildlife biologist for Inland Fisheries & Wildlife, will lead the presentation.

The 41-acre Davis lot is the newest addition to the growing SWOAM land trust family, which now totals nearly 2,000 acres. The land is predominantly saw-log-size white pine with a scattering of hardwoods.

All SWOAM meetings are open to the public. Coffee and doughnuts will be available at 8:30 a.m. at the site.

From Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

The life and art of Harrison Bird Brown will be the featured topic at the second lecture of the 2007 series, "Maine Character and Characters" sponsored in part by a grant from the Maine Humanities Council. Titled "A Painter's Progress: The Life, Work, and Travels of Harrison Bird Brown of Portland, Maine," the lecture will be presented by Earle G. Shettleworth, Jr., director of the Maine Historic Preservation Commission and State Historian, on Thursday, June 14 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House on Broad Street at 7:30 p.m. The lecture is free and open to anyone interested in attending.

Bird was born in Portland, Maine, 6 February 1831, one of four sons of Asa and Elvira

Albany

by Sheila Dyke

Greetings and hello from Albany Township.

Well, our seniors are now graduates! Friday was lovely weather wise, and the graduation ceremonies, thankfully, were not very long. Of course, it helps that the ceremonies were spread out over three nights. We just could not imagine sitting there for hours with a squirming two-year-old!

Congratulations to our Albany graduates: Aaron Barton, Justin Barton, Alan Buck, Dyana-Marie Dyke, Max Meader and Matthew Zinchuk. If I have forgotten any graduates from Albany, I deeply apologize (please, no hate mail), and please know that our best wishes for a happy and suc-

JUST ENOUGH TIME FOR ONE LAST TAKEOUT ... As smoke billowed from the New York Pizza building in Newry Saturday, it appeared that firefighter Bruce Pierce had his priorities in the wrong order — opting to grab a pizza before giving his attention to the flames. But the fire was deliberate. The Newry Fire Department burned the building to make way for a new one, and Pierce simply grabbed an empty pizza box to fan the flames. Owner John Amann plans to build a new 90-by-40-square foot steel structure to house New York Pizza and a gourmet food store. Amann took some ribbing as the old building went up. Asked one passer-by, "Did someone order a well-done pizza?" (Photo: A. Aloisio)

From Western Maine University and Community College Center

Busy professionals seeking advanced credentials can take most or all of the courses leading to a master's degree from the University of Maine or the University of Southern Maine at the Western Maine University and Community College Center (WMUCC). This fall, more than 45 university graduate courses will be offered online or via interactive television (ITV) and videoconference at WMUCC.

Located at 232 Main Street in South Paris, WMUCC provides access to the following university master's degree programs:

-University of Maine's Master of Science in Computer Engineering non-thesis program. Students need a Bachelor of Science degree in computer engineering or its equivalent.

-University of Maine's Master of Science in Counseling with a concentration in rehabilitation counseling. Students must have completed a Bachelor of Science degree in counseling or its equivalent.

-University of Maine's Master of Science in Electrical Engineering is available online. Students must have completed a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering or its equivalent to become a candidate.

Registration is open for the fall 2007 semester, which, for most courses, begins the week of Sept. 4. For more information about university master's programs or to meet with an advisor, please contact WMUCC by calling 743-9322 or check out our website at www.learn.maine.edu.

From Western Maine Cultural Alliance

The website of Western Maine Cultural Alliance (WMCA) www.westernmaineculture.org, now offers voices from the past through audio downloads. See: www.westernmaineculture.org WMCA folklore. The audio selections were created as MP3 files and are part of a multi-media presentation on

Creating the audio downloads was made possible, in part, by a grant from Maine Humanities and from support by Lake Region TV where digitizing and editing was done.

Much of the material was selected from The Oxford Hills Oral History Project conducted between 1989 and 1991 by local historian Peter Lenz.

Interviewees were born around the turn of the 20th century and reminisced about the numerous changes in their lives.

Lives lived before telephones, cars and numerous other things we take for granted. There are also a few excerpts from a folklore project conducted by folklorist Jo Radner on behalf of WMCA in 2002. WMCA Director Toni Seger said she regards the audio project as very important because it both preserved the past and made it much more accessible. "Tape deteriorates over time in ways digital files don't," says Seger. "Tapes can also be lost or damaged," she adds.

"These excerpts are very short, but they're rich with information about another time and are filled with emotion."

The excerpts range from a 90-year-old woman recalling childhood mischief taking coins from her mother's purse and spending it on candy to a veteran remembering trying to celebrate Christmas overseas during World War II.

"Communities appeared to have been much closer in those days," says Seger.

"People didn't have much money, but insisted they never felt poor because they knew their neighbors were always looking out for them."

The WMCA website, which is a virtual location for arts and culture in western Maine, also includes an Artist's sampler page with exhibitors from four counties ranging from York to Franklin, searchable data bases and many other features.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

THE BENEFITS OF HOME OWNERSHIP

Shelter is a fundamental human need which most people fill by renting or buying a house, apartment or condominium. Rental property, however, is often less-than-perfect. Tenants usually experience a rent increase every year or so and feel subject to the wishes of the homeowner. They don't necessarily feel a strong commitment to the property or the community.

Making a decision to buy a house is a major commitment, and the decision is both an economic and an emotional one. Instead of paying the landlord's mortgage every month, homeowners pay their own mortgage and build up equity in their investment. When they paint, plant flowers or make structural improvements to the property, their family reaps the economic and aesthetic benefits. Homeowners tend to be more selective than renters about finding the perfect home, and more diligent about maintaining it in excellent condition. Home ownership can create a positive sense of satisfaction and self-esteem.

He is Just Away
You can not say and you must not say he is gone, he is just away. With a smile on his face and a wave of his hand, he has wandered off to an unknown land. It makes us think how very fair it must be, for he lingers there.

He is NOT gone, he is just away!
